Elena McIvor: Now you know by now how you summon suc by how you build them within your mind and over many incremental passes, they become fully realized and begin to influence, interact, and be trained and taught. Learning the intricacies of how you think and which fantasies you like. The issue is telling them when to leave you be.

Versus when to go ahead and interact with you, is delicate. You don't want to put such a firm rule that they never tease you throughout the day. Because being teased by your succubi is quite fun. Having that sudden feminine presence pressing against your arm, or arms thrown around your neck, cuddled up against your back.

All of these things are desirable, and pleasurable. However You have to find a balance between the desirable, pleasurable things that succubus companions introduce into your mind, and the obligations of the world outside. After all, discharging your external obligations allows you to turn inward, to look at that mental manner where the succubi roam, to inspect and move among them, to dream and fantasize, to allow yourself to drift out, which is what they want, those feminine, seductive, mind enhancing presences living within, that you have conceptualized and built and allowed to develop.

Want you, in a seductive, arousing way, where they will tend to make your fantasies play over your body and mind at any time when you feel even slightly up for it. The issue is this might occur when you're out in the world doing other things. Now. You could simply have a rule that they are disallowed from teasing, tempting, leaning back against you, wrapping their arms over your shoulders, rubbing their bodies back into your form, leaning in to sensually massage your lower back, your, um, slightly parted thighs as you sit comfortable.

But, as the seductive interplay and imagery I've just presented evokes, there's an urge in you to also have them tease you when you're out in the wider world. Accordingly, rather than a wholesale prohibition on any sensual interaction, It would be better if you could simply help them to understand what you need.

The obligations of the world outside and how, since they want you to do well, your succubus companions must refrain from interrupting or interfering with that outside world. And yet It's alright if they tease you at the right times. Teaching them when those right times are, internalizing a judgment of when it's okay for them to make you turned on or play a fantasy over your mind or whisper their latest sensual idea into your head.

Well, teaching them that is just going to take a little bit of creative thinking. On the other hand, it's actually easier than teaching multiple people because that brand which adorns each new succubus created within or summoned into your mind spreads information between them, networking them.

Connecting them into one support structure, one matrix of useful sexual and sensual fantasization, which is also coupled with their understanding that they are loyal and useful to you, and wish to remain so. And so, if any succubus picks up on the nuances of when it's okay to tease you, torment you, hand you ideas, beg for pleasure, when it's okay to interact with you, they will all learn that same lesson.

It will pass through them. And so, while they may be there to cheer you on, correct your posture, give you a back rub, make you turned on and aroused, They will refrain from doing so at times when it would be inopportune or create difficulties for you. Indeed, you'll be able to consider your current situation and act on it, and they will respect those instructions.

Allow me to present an example, as they lean close and listen and so do you. Now you have, after all, invited. These seductive, feminine presences into your brain. The practical implications of this are that life goes on and you must live with those seductive, teasing succubi in your mind. And you must find an appropriate balance between the fun they may promise and your obligations in the wider, weary world.

Sure. You could simply tell them to never bother you when you're out in the world, working or playing or anywhere other than in your bedroom or in complete privacy. But wouldn't that be boring? After all, you are carrying feminine, seductive presences in your mind, who want you, who desire interaction and sensual, lusting caresses.

Limiting them from ever touching you outside of complete privacy would reduce your fun. Instead, you should create. Within your mind, acceptable categories of behavior for them to engage in, in a variety of situations. Imagine splitting each thing your succubi may do, off into its own, useful, complete category.

For example, When you're out in public, maybe your Succubi have permission to tease internally, to suggest fantasies. But they are forbidden from sliding a hand down your back to rest the small, and push you forward or sliding a hand between your legs. These actions are inappropriate when you are in a completely public place.

For example, when focused on errands out in the world, or on responsibilities at work. Maybe you, in particular, wish to experience such pleasure only in private, just as the succubi within your mind would respect a rule which prevented them from acting at all outside of full privacy. So you may instead set levels where different behaviors are appropriate, and levels at which they interact with you.

Each succubus will have their own preferences, based on what you determined and realized when summoning them into your mind and making a space for them for the first time. Some may be too shy to play in public. For example, your mind knows their personalities, and accordingly you'll figure out which will act.

And when, for convenience, perhaps envision three categories. Your mind being capable of sorting various actions Succubi may perform into each of these categories. First, turn your mind to actions which are acceptable anywhere. For example, the supportive functions the succubi perform. Giving you a back rub when you're stressed, helping you relax when you need to take a moment, or simply reminding you of habits and appointments through perking up in your consciousness like a helpful internal secretary.

That kind of thing is alright in public. Call this first category everywhere. And for you, maybe it contains other things too. Maybe you're all right with a little public teasing, arousing you a bit, making your skin more sensitive. Or, providing teasing fantasies. Envision a conversation between you and your internal succubi, your cooperative companions, telling them what is acceptable everywhere.

Whenever you think of a new thing they might do to you, Or with you, a desire or sensation your succubi may supply. Whenever part of the desires or behaviors that they embody plays itself out, you will consider whether it belongs in the Everywhere category. If it is something they may always do, which you know will be acceptable to you in public and allow you to function normally or even help you to focus, then this is the category it belongs in and this is where you would place that activity.

The second category is semi private. What that means for you is up to you, but perhaps it means times and places where you are free from work. Yet, you are somewhere other than in the full privacy of your home or private spaces. In such semi private places, a wider array of behavior by your succubi could be allowable.

You decide which actions are alright, perhaps manifesting in the corner of your vision with teasing imagery. Or running a hand down your thigh, or down your back with lustful intent. Transferring their own desires, and fantasies, firmly to your mind. Leaving you Sensitive. Worked up.

Wanting. How far you feel comfortable letting your succubus companion tease you in semi private locales is entirely up to you.

But turn your mind to the question and inform your succubi. You know they will respect it. Now the third category, is private actions. Those things your succubi need to save for when you're in complete comfort and privacy. Things that you would fully enjoy. Only in that setting. For example, the manifestation of their chests pressing up against you, rubbing and teasing.

The nude image of their needy forms massaging, pleading and pleasing you. Anything which evokes a very strong fantasy, or involves outright stimulation. This may be the kind of thing you would deem completely private. Things you would fully enjoy. Whatever is inappropriate everywhere and inappropriate in semi private places will be appropriate in private only.

A simple categorization. Based on the category you place an action in, your succubi will know where to act, and where to refrain from acting. And if they tease you, in a particular way, in a particular place, you may simply think, not right now. To move that action down a category.

Simple, and easy. This enables you to enjoy some of the pleasurable benefits of your succubi while maintaining comfort and decorum.

You only have them really act upon your body and mind where you're going to be comfortable. Your Succubi are nuanced and focused on your interests and your pleasure. So they will look for the spirit of your commands and your preferences above all else. They will respect you changing your mind if some experience or fantasy proves too intense.

They'll respect you changing your mind if some need arises and then changing it back later. They want you to be as happy as possible. So your symbiotic succubus companions will arouse you and participate in your everyday activities, but only enough to be interesting, while remaining comfortable.

Understanding that, feel this information and training spreading throughout all of your succubus companions, teaching each and every one of them what you need them to know. about restraint, about these categories. So anything a succubus might do to you, and with you, sorts into the category of everywhere, or semi private, or private.

And then it will only occur according to these criteria. Everywhere is everywhere. Semi private is private time, and when you have public time where you feel comfortable enough for the particular action in question. And private is only when you're at your most comfortable. Simple. And then whatever categories you choose, the action in question, be it teasing or fantasization or sexy husky whispers in your ear, will only occur according to these criteria.

Safe, comfortable, well trained succubi, who will work with you for your pleasure, at the right times, in the right places. And in the right way. A simple, ongoing, internal conversation, which supports and assists your succubi in choosing the right time to tease or let your fantasies run wild. They are sensual creatures, attached and attracted to you, made from your fantasies and laid down on a mental projection of the kind of arousing thing you'd do to yourself anyway.

But, they also respect your autonomy and desires. After all, they live within, inasmuch as they are mental conceptualizations of things you wanted. If you want privacy before they do a particular thing, they'll give it to you, and you'll be able to simply enjoy, safe and comfortable, in this knowledge, now.
